Understanding whether your child is making effective progress in his/her special education program can be a complicated and frustrating undertaking. Expert evaluation reports can be extremely helpful to parents who are trying to determine whether their child's program is appropriate for him/her. Over the past decade, Attorney Jeffrey Sankey has worked with hundreds of parents to help them obtain special education services for their children. In doing so, Attorney Sankey has learned how important evaluation reports and experts can be when seeking appropriate programs for students with special needs.

Topics covered will include:

1. What is effective progress?
2. Understanding evaluation reports
3. Working with experts
