WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14

3:00 - 5:00 p.m. PRE-CONFERENCE WORKSHOPS

1. Making Meaning Out of “Making the Work Meaningful”
   Capitol Ballroom B
   The DPI Educator Effectiveness Team has learned a LOT from districts through the evaluation of the System—we know what positively and negatively impacts the work. The problem is, we typically stop after listing those things, without describing WHY a district decided to do those things, HOW a district moved from decision to action successfully, or WHAT it looks like when those things are “done well.” This preconference session will provide several opportunities to help participants learn how to engage in the EE work in a meaningful way.
   1. Participants will hear from several districts about what they mean when they say they “make the work meaningful,” as well as how they went about doing that.
      Topics will include building positive organizational culture and engagement; focusing efforts on the right work rather than on compliance to “things”; addressing local customization of implementation to meet strategic priorities; and moving from EE as a standalone thing to part of the day-to-day processes connected to all district and state continuous improvement initiatives.
   2. The session will also debut new DPI resources and tools designed specifically for district administrators to use with their boards and their school leaders. The tools will highlight policies and decisions each district MUST make and support them as they work through the local decision-making process so the district is set up for success.
   3. Additionally, the session will allow attendees time to ask DPI staff questions about the System and/or hear about any recent updates.

Presenters: Katharine Rainey, Director of Educator
Effectiveness, DPI, and Mark Mueller, Education
Consultant, DPI

2. ESSA Listening Session
   Madison Ballroom
   The Department of Public Instruction will develop a comprehensive state implementation plan for the Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) over the coming year. The goal of this listening session is to learn from you as educational experts, to inform and guide our planning. This listening session will be a combination of brief presentations by Department of Public Instruction (DPI) staff to provide important contextual information, followed by opportunities to discuss specific questions. This structure is intended to queue up structured conversations that will result in well-informed feedback for DPI as we embark upon more detailed state planning for ESSA. DPI wants to learn from you!
   Laura Pinsonneault, Director, Office of Educational Accountability, and Jonas Zuckerman, Director, Title I and School Support, DPI

3. The Business of Education
   Capitol Ballroom A
   The challenges of ensuring high levels of success for each learner with limited resources requires superintendents to think, act and communicate in new ways. ‘Horizontal growth’ is a preferred method in the business of optimizing development resources, by implementing concepts developed by others as the baseline and then using their own freed-up resources to improve upon and springboard the product designs and practices to the next level.
Recently, an education official asked, "So why don't public schools copy the good practices from each other?"... especially with cutbacks in funding. This 'Business of Education' session explores the feasibility of schools employing different corporate business principles and strategies to optimize resources, lead through stewardship, improve their products and communicate effectively to cause the community to better support public education.

Presenters: Kathleen Cooke, PhD and Michael Gallagher
4. Academic & Career Planning: Strategically Integrating College AND Career Readiness

Wisconsin Ballroom

Career Exploration, Career Preparation, Career Readiness seem to fill the airwaves as the latest fad. So how does an overwhelmed district and staff overcome initiative overload to look past the "fad" to the opportunity to help all students achieve and thrive well beyond graduation day. Many states have been leading the way to implement academic and career planning (ACP) services. Evidence suggests that student planning and connecting school to visions for the future helps reduce the number of dropouts while engaging students at risk, provides better links to rigorous and relevant curriculum for all students, and establishes better connections amongst parents, students, and schools. Wisconsin law requires school districts to provide ACP services to students in grades 6 through 12 beginning in Fall 2017. This past year, 25 Wisconsin school districts have piloted the ACP process to assist DPI to refine implementation guidance and training. This interactive session will describe an overview of ACP requirements, lessons learned from the pilot districts, and provide tools for leaders to take the next steps to move FROM fad and compliance TO promise and opportunity!

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN: ECONOMY, DEMOGRAPHY, STATE FINANCES, AND SCHOOLS - Wisconsin/Capitol AB Ballrooms

The arena in which Wisconsin public schools operate is undergoing significant change. Declining enrollments, increased competition for students among K-12 districts and with private schools, near-stagnant school revenues, and a new “relationship” between teachers and administration are some of the challenges districts face. This talk will examine state finances, the upcoming state budget, and what public schools might expect to see in it. We will also look ahead to see what might be coming longer term. Some insights into expanded school choice and K-12’s new “local control;” referenda. A look at some national comparisons will give a broader perspective to Wisconsin’s situation.

We live in an age of paradox, controversy, complexity, and constant change. As leaders in education, we are, by nature, big-picture people. It’s up to us to see things in context. Helping put things in perspective goes with the territory. That means we need to be in touch with the needs and promises of a 24/7/365 fast-changing world. Educator, futurist, author, speaker, strategist, and international counsel Gary Marx has devoted much of his life to helping us stay in touch. In his best-selling book, Twenty-One Trends for the 21st Century...Out of the Trenches and into the Future, he lays out an array of trends, from the flow of generations, technology, the economy, and jobs, to personalization and the urgency of releasing ingenuity. “It’s important to align our curriculum and instruction with our learning goals.” Marx observes. “It’s also important to align our learning goals with individual student needs and massive forces that are shaping our world…the one those students will inherit.”

Gary Marx

The purposes of education go far beyond individual subjects or disciplines. While we live in a multidisciplinary and highly complex world, high-stakes testing and lean budgets have too often nudged us toward narrowing our curriculum. At the same time, the need for an education that is broad and deep has grown exponentially. As big picture people, help those around you discover the broad purposes of schools, of education, to see things in a broader context. Let's join our colleagues in starting the conversation.

Gary Marx

Make some room in your thinking and engagement tool box. In a few short minutes, Gary Marx will introduce a family of processes we can use to get people substantively involved, to tap their genius, and even to conceive of possibilities for the future. A few of these tools might be standbys you've used for years. Others might spark some new ideas you can put to work Monday morning.

1:15- 2:15 p.m.  FUTURE-FOCUSED LEADERSHIP AND COMMUNICATION

Why should every one of us be a future-focused leader? Think of it this way: All educators, whatever positions they hold, are leaders, by virtue of the profoundly important role they play in society. Our very future as a free society depends on what they do...or don't do. Rather than formulas, Gary Marx zeroes in on qualities and principles of leadership that he has gleaned from working with educators worldwide. At the heart of leadership is effective, inventive, open, honest communication…the kind that goes beyond telling to listening and learning. When people are engaged, we not only benefit from their thinking, but in the process, we develop a sense of mutual understanding and ownership. The pot at the end of the rainbow is a sense that "We're all in this together!"

2:15 - 2:30 p.m.  BREAK

2:30 - 3:30 p.m.  MEET THE PARENTS: HOW PUBLIC EDUCATION-FOCUSED ADVOCACY GROUPS ARE HAVING AN IMPACT

Over the last two years, more and more public education-focused advocacy groups have been started by parents and grandparents in communities across Wisconsin. Many of the community members who comprise these groups have not been involved in advocacy in the past. However, these groups are having a profound impact on the political process in our state and will be even more important in the next state budget cycle.

Meet the founding members of some of the most active parent groups in the state during this panel conversation. Learn about how these groups were founded, what advice they would give others thinking of starting their own advocacy group and what they have in store for the upcoming legislative session.

This session is intended to provide pre-identified groups to gather as a cohort as well as to allow for on-site selection of relevant topics Superintendents would like to discuss in more depth with others. REDEFINING READY: COLLEGE AND CAREER READINESS FOR LIFE BEYOND HIGH SCHOOL

Redefining Ready! is a national campaign launched by AASA - The School Superintendents Association, to introduce a new multi-metric, research based approach to determining what it means to be college ready, career ready, and life ready. This campaign is designed to change the national narrative regarding public education from a one-standardized-test judges all (students, teachers, parents, and communities) philosophy to a focus on readiness for our nation's 50 million plus public school students by focusing on the three main areas of importance to students, parents, teachers, and employers: college readiness, career readiness, and life readiness. Since the implementation of No Child Left Behind, educators have looked to meet the needs of a diverse student body with a narrow focus on assessment results. Now with the Every Student Succeeds Act the law of the land, Redefining Ready! offers educators an opportunity to diversify the manner in which we measure student success overall.

Dave Schuler, AASA Past President

10:00 - 11:15 a.m. USING FUTURE SEARCH TO ENGAGE YOUR COMMUNITY

We know the importance of a meaningful relationship between a school district and the communities it serves—the vision and values of how students are educated need to be clear and aligned. What is your strategy for engaging the public in a meaningful way? This session will introduce you to how three very different Districts engaged their community in a thoughtful and deliberate process. Using a methodology called “Future Search,” each of these District’s brought their “whole system” together (represented by over 100 citizens), over three days, to produce common ground, a shared vision, and specific outcomes that helped to shape the District’s priorities for the next decade.

Bryan Davis, Shorewood; Glenn Schlender, Luxemburg-Casco; Heidi Taylor-Eliopoulos, Chippewa Falls; and Brad Saron, Sun Prairie (formerly of Chippewa Falls)

11:15 - 12:00 p.m. ALLIES AND ALLIANCES FOR ADVOCACY

Advancing the effectiveness of schools on behalf of students is not a task current education professionals can accomplish alone. Community support of schools is critical to their success and building a meaningful relationship with the community is an important responsibility of the Superintendent. Fortunately, there are important allies and alliances in this effort. A panel of leaders in relationship building between schools and the greater community will offer perspectives on community-based allies for schools.

The Appointment of the Medical Advisor was removed from the Consent Agenda since one of our board members may need to abstain from this vote. I added it to the Regular Action (8.a.).

The recommendation is for the appointment of Dr. Susan Rowe as medical advisor for 2016/17.
The Board expects employees to follow employee handbook, board policies, individual building rules, and state regulations. Administrators and/or supervisors are expected to discipline employees when such action becomes necessary. Maintaining a level of acceptable behavior on the part of all employees will result in the best possible learning environment for students.

Discipline may result when an employee’s actions fall short of accepted standards of professional behavior or violate a policy or rule, or the employee’s conduct is detrimental to the interest of the District.

Typically, disciplinary action will involve any of four steps: verbal warning, written warning, suspension with or without pay, and termination of employment. Specific disciplinary actions may depend on the behavior and frequency of occurrences. Some serious employee behaviors may lead to suspension or termination without following progressive discipline steps. The District reserves the right to impose disciplinary action as may be appropriate in particular circumstances.
