

Memo from Superintendent,
John Stratton

In The Loop

HEADLINES / Governor Ends FSA/EOC in 2022-2023

Today, Governor Ron DeSantis announced the Spring 2022 administration of FSA assessments will be the last. Florida will move to three smaller, progress monitoring assessments for accountability measures.

- This step is part of the state's move toward the F.A.S.T. Plan
- Link to the media release from the Governor's Office:
- Effective Date: School Year 2022-2023
- More information from the Department of Education will be coming soon.

"This is an encouraging step. Educators have long embraced progress monitoring as the most reliable measure of learning growth. When taken in snapshots, throughout the school year, students can see their own growth, parents can understand the data and teachers can remediate in real-time. The Governor's decision returns more time for instruction and allows students to show their learning over time. That's a win for kids."

- Superintendent, John Stratton