12th SEMI-ANNUAL MONITORING REPORT FOR THE MAGNOLIA PARK M-301

23 September 2019

Ву

Donald Richardson Ecological Consultants, Inc. 5121 Ehrlich Road, Suite 103A Tampa, Florida 33624

INTRODUCTION

To off set intersection impacts associated US 301 and Falkenburg Road, one mitigation area was constructed (M-301) within the Magnolia subdivision located on the south side of Progress Blvd. (Figure 1). Mitigation area M-301 is a mixture of forested and freshwater marsh ecosystems that was planted with a mixture of trees, shrubs and herbaceous species (Table 1).

Table. 1. Planting species for M-301.

Scientific Name	Common Name	Size	M-301
Trees
Acer rubrum	Red maple	7 gal.	41
Quercus laurifolia	Laurel oak	7 gal.	41
Taxodium distichum	Bald cypress	7 gal.	41
Myrica cerifera	Wax myrtle	1 gal.	52
Herbs
Juncus effusus	Soft rush	4 inch	3824
Pontederia cordata	Pickerelweed	4 inch	145
Sagittaria lancifolia Arrowhead		4 inch	145
Spartina bakeri	Sand cordgrass	4 inch	342

Plant installation was completed by Cardno Entrix in 2012. A monitoring and maintenance schedule has been initiated for this project. No monitoring reports have been completed for this mitigation area. The monitoring report is based on the data that is collected in the field. For consistency, certain parameters have been selected for repeated evaluation, such as herbal survival, plant and water coverage, and water depth. Together, the changes in these parameters are intended to characterize the progress of the planting area towards becoming a viable wetland system. Maintenance activities will include the removal of nuisance vegetation to assure that its coverage does not exceed 5% of the site. All nuisance vegetation will be periodically removed from the wetland prior to or shortly after each monitoring report. An inventory of the species that have volunteered naturally is listed in Table 4.

RESULTS

WATER DATA

At the time of this report, no water was flowing from the mitigation area into the weir structure. Water levels have decreased due to the onset of the winter drought season. Exposed soils were saturated due several recent rain events.

M-301	80	80	0	1	95	30

WOODY DATA

Overall survival of the tree species is still about 86% for all species installed; however, both bald cypress and red maple exceed permit requirements. Most of the losses were attributed to the laurel oak edge along the upland side of the sand cordgrass zone. Some of the laurel oaks appear water stressed due to the sandy soils at the top of bank and past mowing. All of the trees were installed on the southern and western edges of the mitigation area as per the plans. The wax myrtle buffer on the east side of the site has matured and most shrubs exceed 12 feet in height. Laurel oak and a few bald cypress vary from 10-15 feet in height with red maples somewhat taller, ranging from 12-25+ feet. No additional mortality was observed during this reporting event.

HERBAL DATA

Installed herbal coverage meets permit requirements due to the expansion of spikerush and pickerelweed. Soft rush and spikerush are the dominant species followed by arrowhead and pickerelweed. Overall cover of installed species is about 95% for the emergent herbaceous species and about 15% for sand cordgrass in the buffer. Herbal cover will continue to improve; however, some of the cordgrass associated with the wax myrtle buffer are being shaded. Soft rush dominates the eastern half of the pond and now forms a dense cluster with some open water. Other observed species include bulrush and arrowhead. The tall smartweed now covers about 20% of the site and may eventually out compete the emergent aquatics.

NUISANCE SPECIES COVER

Exotic or nuisance species covers is about 5% of the site and included bladderpod, West Indian marsh grass and torpedo grass. Maintenance activities are now being conducted on a quarterly basis for this site. The upland buffer is periodically being mowed by the HOA behind the houses to reduce ruderal seed set.

NATURAL RECRUITMENT

Overall natural recruitment by desirable species is about 95% and most species have begun to fill in gaps in the planting matrix. The most common species include swamp dock, smartweed, mock bishop's weed, red ludwigia, water hyssop, marsh fleabane, foxtail grass, tickseed, hemp vine, bushy bluestem, hedge hyssop, baby tears, blackberry, climbing aster, dogfennel, flat sedge, creeping Charlie, Vasey grass, loosestrife, lemon bacopa and others (Table 3).

SUMMARY

The M-301 mitigation site is trending toward success due to sufficient hydrology. The wax myrtle buffer has coalesced on the east side of the planting area and most plants exceed 12 feet in height. Sand cordgrass was also planted adjacent to the shrubs which is currently being shaded by the dense shrubs. Most of the trees have responded favorably to the wet summer season except for some of the laurel oaks at the upper edge of the slope. The marsh supports a mixture of both installed and desirable species which now cover about 95% of the marsh planting zone. Spikerush which seems to prefer the slightly alkaline soils may eventually out compete some of the other emergent species. Nuisance vegetation covers less than 5% of the site and a quarterly maintenance program is being conducted in order to curtail exotic invasion. Natural recruitment has been excellent due to sufficient hydrology. Wildlife usage by avian species including wood storks has been excellent for this site.
