ACCEPTANCE OF AUDIT

Therese O'Neill and Brian Guastella introduced additional audit reports and reported that the final documents revealed no findings. With approval by the Board this evening, the audits will be delivered on time.

OAK PARK EDUCATION FOUNDATION

Deb Abrahamson and Phil Hausken addressed the Board. Abrahamson shared that the Oak Park Education Foundation (OPEF) supplies special programs for the district, but are not funded by the district. Geared Up, Architecture Adventure, Vex Robotics, Art Start, and Global Village were introduced. It was reported that many of the programs are supported by volunteers, and several are offered to the students during the school day. The OPEF programs reached about 2,900 students last year. Abrahamson shared that students with special needs are included in the programs if they are scheduled in the regular classrooms during the program time. Additionally, Art Start and Geared Up are offered to the special education classrooms.

It was reported that the foundation is working to maintain strong ties with District 97 and the community. They are ensuring quality, innovativeness, accessibility and diversity of their programs. They are maintaining quality programs and fulfilling their mission despite tough financial times.

Future plans include expanding coverage, making improvements based on surveys and audits, and offering more summer programs. They will continually seek to expand their donor base and partnerships with area businesses. Marketing for the foundation includes a new OPEF Web site, social networking, engaging more parent volunteers and increasing the volunteer recognition.

Hausken asked for the district's continuing support by facilitating opportunities to further build their relationship with teachers and administrators.

PRINCIPALS' REPORT - SCHOOL SUCCESS PLAN

Dr. Roberts introduced the presentation by expressing the need to develop a deeper understanding of the testing results, analyzing the data and skillfully reacting to the findings. He suggested making this an ongoing dialog at the Board table, suggesting that the principals be invited back to the Board table on a regular basis. He commended Dr. Anderson and the principals for the program presented this evening.

The principals addressed the need for students to be successful in both behavioral and academic systems. They reported on the current district-wide assessments - Measures of Academic Progress (MAP), Dynamic Indicators of Basic Early Literacy Skills (DIBELS) and Cognitive Ability Test (CogAT) sharing that principals and staff are very excited about the data that is being gathered. Additionally, the schools now have a data-rich problem solving team in each building. The team shared sample data with the Board and explained how it is used to identify each individual child's strengths and weaknesses.

The principals reported that future plans include continuing the successful efforts currently underway, maximizing effectiveness, efficiency, cross pollination, and laser-like focus. School RtI teams will continue to match the students with the right interventions. The spring training for the Treasurers reading program will include making the RtI connection apparent.

Dr. Roberts reported that strategies and tactics are important. As a profession we are capable of delivering winning strategies and preparing for the unexpected, but that's not enough. The team's intent is to challenge and raise the expectation for every student, create a respective nurturing student/teacher rapport, and make instruction more intentional.

Dr. Roberts suggested that the Board members submit their questions to the principals for response at a later date. It was agreed that a video of this presentation posted on the district Web site could be useful in helping the community understand the importance of testing and the data it supplies. Principals were reminded of the importance of announcing the community chats with their families and staff.
